CHERRY PECTORAL

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

The merits of this article are now so well known to the community, that it is only necessary to assure the public that the same unremitting attention is paid to its preparation as heretofore. By its long continued use in the hands of many skilful physicians, it has proved itself to be the most effectual remedy for the cure of all pulmonary complaints that has ever been discovered. Indeed, so wide is the field of its usefulness, and so numerous the cases of its cures, that there is scarcely a family in any section of the country but what has some one among them who has been restored to health by it, or who has received relief from it. When taken in time, it will cure every other kind of cough or disease of the throat and lungs, that is curable. Even in cases apparently hopeless, where the system has become reduced, and the lungs seemingly almost wasted away, it will check the progress of the disease, and induce the patient to make a trial of its virtues, when he would not have the slightest reason to expect a cure from any other source. Many of these cases, which at first seemed to be beyond the reach of human means, have been publicly known.

A LOVELY YOUNG LADY

Cured of Consumption !

The following is from the pen of WM. HENRY SIMPSON, Esq., the distinguished Editor of the "Sentinel and Naval Argus" an old sister of New York, Jan 20, 1850. What could be more conclusive?

It is seldom we permit ourselves to occupy a space in these columns to speak in praise of any article in the market; but we have always been ready to bear a fellow-creature's testimony to the virtues of any medicine which we conscientiously believe will relieve the afflicted, and we therefore take pleasure in saying that we have found Dr. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL a most excellent remedy for the cure of all kinds of pulmonary complaints. Having had occasion to give it a trial in the case of a young lady who was fast sinking under the ravages of that fell disease, Consumption, and who had been pronounced by her physicians to be in the last stage of the disease, we were induced to procure a bottle of the CHERRY PECTORAL, more as a matter of experiment than with any hope of benefit. The result, however, was truly astonishing. Before she had taken the contents of the bottle, she was able to sit up in bed, and in a few days was able to walk about the room. She has since continued to improve in health, and is now as well as she ever was. We have given this brief statement of the case, that others who are afflicted in a similar manner may be induced to try the same remedy. We have no interest in the sale of the medicine, other than a desire that the afflicted should be restored to health, and we feel confident that those who will give the CHERRY PECTORAL a fair trial, will find relief from its use.

TUESDAY, JULY 8, 1851.

☞ It is very gratifying to those who love their country more than an ultra idea, and to those who hold the Union dearer than an unbridled indulgence in sectional agitation and vituperation, that, in most instances, when our National Anniversary has been celebrated, feelings, American and patriotic, of kindness and moderation, have prevailed. It would indeed be an ill omen, to see a lawlessness and infidelity to the Constitution under which we have been born and lived, to hear that Constitution—the result of the great struggle for National Independence, which we have celebrated for seventy-five years with pride and patriotic feeling,—traduced by Fourth of July orators—to observe a feeling of dissatisfaction, growing and maturing in the minds of a certain class of men claiming to be reformers,—towards the best Government the world has yet seen, or history affords an example, it would be mournful, we say, to witness such spectacles as these on the Fourth of July. It is believed that few scenes like this were witnessed on Friday last within the confines of our land. And we are happy to believe that a vast majority of our people are loyal to a Constitution which, tho' not perfect, cannot at present be bettered, and faithful to the fulfillment of compacts which no honest citizen would attempt to disregard.—Though there is always danger when traitors are within, as well as when there are enemies without, yet we trust that, whatever treasonable words were spoken on our National Sabbath, fell upon the ears of those who heard them, only as the idle wind. We trust that he who was then host to the internal peace and prosperity of his country, met with the frowns and contempt of indignant auditors.

☞ Yesterday our streets had very much the appearance of the Fourth. As the weather was so unpleasant on Friday, it was not thought best to give up "without a demonstration," so there was quite a turn out. In the afternoon, the Brewer Artillery, accompanied by the Bangor Brass Band and escorted by Engine Company No. 6, in drill dress, paraded through the principal streets. The Companies made a very fine appearance. The Artillery looked remarkably well, and we hope when they come out again they will give us another visit.

The deferred exhibition of Fire Works took place from the summit of Thomas's Hill last evening.

☞ A report reached this city on Sunday that the steamer Aspinwall, running on the Chagres River, had been stove by a collision with one of the large steamers. It will be recollected that the materials for the Aspinwall were prepared in this city, and taken to Chagres under the supervision of A. G. Jewett, Esq.

Somerset vs. Penobscot Winter Rye.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier.

After reading your account of a stock of winter rye, taken from the field of Mr. D. Wheeler of Brewer, I went to a field on my farm and took therefrom a stock which measures 7 feet 2½ inches. The stock aforesaid was the first and only one selected, and that too without any previous measurement.

Also, a large part of the County Jail is unoccupied and if the present liquor law is continued in force it is to be feared that this building will become useless to the County. Any person desirous of obtaining either of these buildings would do well to call on the proper authorities. P.

The Farmer's Guide to Scientific and Practical Agriculture.

The concluding number of this valuable publication has been received from the publishers. The work comprises two royal octavo volumes, and contains 1600 pages. It is a valuable work for farmers. It is published by L. Scott & Co., of New York.

Merry's Museum for July has appeared. This number commences a new volume.—It contains, as usual, much entertaining matter for children. The "Museum" is a great favorite with all young readers who have become acquainted with it.

Sartain's Magazine for August has been received. It makes a fine appearance as usual, has fine engravings, and its pages filled with useful and entertaining matter.

The Christian Examiner for March and July are on our table. The contents of both numbers are of a high character. The Examiner's contributors are among the first writers in the country.

The Daguerreian Journal for May is on our table. This number is the first of the second volume. It is devoted principally to daguerreian art.

☞ W. H. Graham, of New York City, who was reported killed by lightning, announces that he is alive and well at Detroit.

☞ It was raining in Boston on the Fourth and the Fire Works were postponed to last evening.

As usual—interesting in all its parts. It is a valuable publication.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier.

Limestone River, Aroostook Co., June 23.

It is very desirable that the public should be correctly informed as to the advantages which the Aroostook valley presents to that portion of the community who are desirous of locating themselves in reference to the cultivation of the soil as a means of subsistence. Individuals of discernment and enterprise naturally suggest many inquiries, which influence them in an object of so much importance as that of settling in a new country and enduring the hardships which are the lot of those who are instrumental in turning a wilderness into a fruitful field.—The first inquiries are, what is the nature of the soil? Is it fertile? Is it easy of cultivation? What are the prospects for a market?

I am happy to be able to answer these questions, not from what others have reported, but from what my eyes have seen. The whole has come within the scope of my own observation. Here is a vast body of the richest land that can be found this side of Michigan or Indiana.

Since the date of my last communication to you, I have had an opportunity to satisfy my mind as to many objects which tend to influence the settler in a new country. The towns-ships bordering on this Province line are but a specimen of those which extend for scores of miles in a westerly direction. Having had the privilege of passing down the Aroostook in a "tow boat," so called, I was inexpressibly delighted with the scenery presented on the margin of this beautiful river. Large tracts of the richest alluvial soil, occasionally, arrest the attention, whilst in the distance waving forests of hard growth present the most inviting prospects to the lover of nature, and the gentle breeze that moves the rich foliage of the most luxuriant growth the eye ever rested upon, seems to beckon the traveler to stop, give up his stable to his projects and spend his days in that calm seclusion where every reasonable want is gratified, and where he can appreciate the sentiment that, "there are tongues in trees, books in running streams, sermons in stones, and good in every thing."

A settlement has commenced in most of the townships bordering on the river, and where this is the case, every evidence presents itself of prosperity almost beyond a parallel. The whole country is mostly free from stone, and the farmer must depend on cedar to fence his land for years to come.

There is not a county this side of Hudson River that has so great a surplus of provision as Aroostook. No stronger evidence can be presented in favor of the superiority of this section to any other within the bounds of the New England States. Such is the depth of the soil that the roots of the trees, instead of spreading, penetrates the earth so that the farmer runs his plough near the stumps without the least obstruction. Several crops are taken in succession from the land, and when sown to grass a most luxuriant growth is the result.

Winter wheat is raised here to good advantage. The ground seldom freezes more than four inches, and consequently does not heave as is the case in the western part of the country. Spring wheat, when sown early, is almost a sure crop. The soil is congenial to the growth of wheat, as it is everywhere impregnated with lime. I do not hesitate to predict that the Aroostook Valley will soon become, in this respect, the Genesee of New England.

Oats and buckwheat are raised to a very great extent, and consequently large numbers of swine of the best breed, are fattened.—There is a ready sale of the surplus of pork at a fair price to the lumbering concerns in this vicinity. This is designed for a grazing country, and in this respect it will soon go before any other part of the State.

Millet and barley are a sure crop. Mr Rolf, of letter O, obtained sixty-seven and a half bushels of millet from four quarts of seed.—The oats raised here are one-third heavier than those raised in any other part of New England.

There are but a few who give their attention to agriculture without becoming, in a short time, independent. The improvements made here by persons of limited means are almost incredible. It appears more like magic than reality. I am now writing from Letter E, nine miles north of the Aroostook river. Six years ago Messrs. Eastman and Nourse commenced operations in this place. They have erected a saw and grist mill, two clapboard machines and one shingle machine. They have a full store of goods, and what is still better, they have cleared more than a hundred acres of land. They employ from thirty-five to forty hands. This is one of the townships set apart by Maine for settlement. A road is about being laid out from the Aroostook to Madawaska through this town. The land on this road is of the first quality, and I have no doubt but that this town will soon be settled by an enterprising community. Those who locate themselves here will find employ through the winter if they desire it. Let the advantages which this town presents to the actual settler be contrasted with those enjoyed by the first settlers of the western part of the State. Here is a saw mill, and here is an abundance of timber for every useful purpose. Instead of being under the necessity of going to mill, to a great distance through roads almost impassable, here is mill almost at your very door. Here is also a store where provision may be procured till such times as that it may be raised from the soil. Those who first settled the western country had no advantage of this kind. In short, whilst the one was destitute of almost every comfort, the other may have all the necessaries and many of the luxuries of life.

The St. Johns river presents the people of this section of country with a means of transportation at once easy and cheap. The time is not far distant when a railroad will be opened to the Penobscot, so that the people here will enjoy the double advantage of the markets on the St. Johns and on the Penobscot waters. A railroad will soon connect Matawamkeag with Bangor. The country from the "Point" to Houlton is almost a perfect level, and it will require but a very little grading from Houlton to the Aroostook river, which should be tapped near Fort Fairfield in order to have the advantage of the trade of the whole Aroostook valley. The public may see the correctness of this position when informed that this noble river will admit of boat navigation nearly its whole length, and consequently produce, of every description, may be transported down with the greatest imaginable ease.

As to timber operations, they cannot easily be diverted from that channel, which nature has marked out.—Lumber of every description must float down the Aroostook and St. Johns. This country, however, is better calculated for agriculture than for lumber. Whilst the one increases the other decreases in the same proportion. There is, in fact, no more timber than is necessary for home consumption, and hardly that. The superficial observer would suppose that the supply of cedar is inexhaustible; but this is by no means the case. The swamps are numerous but very limited in extent. Care should be taken to preserve this valuable kind of timber as the whole country will be entirely dependant upon it as an indispensable material for fencing.

The object of the writer is to present to the public a correct view of this interesting portion of the State of Maine. He would not be the instrument of misguiding his fellow creatures in an affair of so much importance as that of changing their location, nor has he any interest in so doing.

The chief and indeed the only objection urged against this part of the country is its high latitude. The supposed shortness of the seasons is an insuperable obstacle in the way of many who cannot think of establishing themselves so far north. It is necessary to present to the public many startling facts in relation to this point, which must be deferred to another article. F. Mack.

Speech of the President at Fredericksburg.

At the dinner given to the President at the Exchange Hotel in Fredericksburg, Thomas Barton, Esq., President of the day, addressed the company in some admirable remarks, and concluded by proposing the following sentiment:

Our distinguished guest, the President of the United States—True to the Constitution of his country as the needle to the pole, he has steered the ship of State through a threatening storm with a statesman's arm and a patriot's soul.

To this sentiment, after prolonged applause, President Fillmore responded as follows:

Mr. President and fellow citizens. I hope and trust that this imaginary character alluded to by my honorable friend on my left will never be applied to me. I have no claim to such an honor, and the toast which you have given is of itself even quite too flattering.

But I wish to say, before I proceed further, that in the few remarks which I have to make I desire to address them to you in private. I hope if there is a "which among you taken notes," that he will burn and not print them. My own impression is that an individual exercising the first office in the gift of the nation should rather be known by his official acts and official course than by speeches made at a dinner table. I shall therefore not avail myself of this occasion to express to you the policy by which I mean to be governed in the administration of the Government. Upon that subject, suffice it to say, when I took the oath prescribed by the Constitution to support the Union and defend it, I meant what I said, and I intend to carry out that promise. (Great and long prolonged applause.) In the execution of this duty I mean to know no sectional differences. My maxim is, equal and exact justice to all, lavored to none. (Renewed applause and cheering.) Those who are willing that the Government shall be administered upon these principles, I hope will be my friends, no matter by what political appellation they may have been known heretofore—whether Whigs or Democrats. (Cheers.) I could but not be sensible, when unexpectedly elevated to the position of the great danger which threatened our country. We have heard much of danger to the Union—I fear no more than all have heard—but pardon me for saying that in my estimation it should never have become a source of discussion. The very idea of disunion should be frowned upon by every true American as deserving of no argument and of no justification. It is to me painful that it should even be a subject of conversation.

Pardon me for alluding, in this connection to an anecdote in my Congressional career. I had an old and valued friend, one whom I esteemed, yet who possessed some eccentricities and peculiar notions of political duty of which I did not approve. I need not say that I allude to the venerable Mr. Adams. You are all aware that he was early imbued with the principle, upon which he universally practiced, that every citizen had a right to be heard in Congress by his petition, and that he was often made the medium of presenting to the House matters which he entirely disapproved. His maxim was that every citizen had a right to petition, and that it was the duty of Congress to consider such petition. Acting upon this known principle, he was often played upon, doubtless by those who were influenced by mischievous purposes. I well recollect on one occasion that he rose and stated to the House that he had received a petition of a very peculiar character, the sentiments of which he did not approve; but on the principle upon which he universally acted, he felt it to be his duty to present it to the House. He stated that it was a petition from certain citizens praying for a dissolution of the Union; but for the purpose of freeing himself from the imputation of such a sentiment, he, at the same time, he discharged his duty, in the presentation of the petition, felt it also his duty to accompany it with a resolution that it be referred to a select committee with positive instructions to report against the prayer of the petitioners. What were the proceedings upon that occasion? This announcement was no sooner made in the House of Representatives than the whole House seemed to be in a ferment, and in a few moments a resolution was introduced for the purpose of expelling Mr. Adams from the House for having dared to introduce a petition there for a dissolution of the Union, although accompanied at the same time with a positive declaration on his part that he was opposed to it, and an appeal to the House to canvass his sentiments on the subject.

But what do we see now? Ten years have not passed since that scene took place in the House of Representatives, and since that man, who for four years had discharged the duties of Chief Magistrate of this Union, stood at the bar of that House, and morning after morning came to me, and asked of me not to move the public business, so as to force a vote on the resolution expelling him from the House, until he had a chance to be heard. He feared, sir, that he might be expelled from that body for doing what he deemed to be his imperative duty in preservation of the right of petition, although he was imbued with the strongest sentiments in favor of the Union of these States. I was forced, from feeling of sympathy and regard for him, to suffer the public business to be delayed from day to day, for one or two weeks in order that he might present his sentiments to the House on the subject, to convince them that, although he presented a petition for the dissolution of the Union, he did not approve of those sentiments. I doubt whether anything short of that could have saved this distinguished man from expulsion from that body.

Since then we have lived scarcely ten years, and the value of this Union is now a common subject of conversation. This very circumstance—looking back to that occurrence, and then to what we have seen within the year past—should alarm the true friends of this Republic. It should teach us there are men North and South who are ready to accelerate the fall of this Union, and if necessary to destroy it.—I say this in all sincerity. I say, too, that when I look back to the crisis through which we have passed, I feel that there was danger that the days of this Union were numbered. If I determined then, if necessary, to save every political prospect I had in the world, and life itself, to save the country. [Great cheering.]

But, fellow citizens, I have said more than I intended. Your very flattering and undeserved compliment has betrayed me into a speech that I never intended to make. You will pardon me, I trust. There are those with me much more capable of addressing you than myself.—Permit me to return to you my very sincere thanks for the very kind manner in which you have received me.

Jenny Lind Monmen. The Jenny Lind concert at Hartford, Saturday evening was attended by a very large audience, but was broken up by a mob of outsiders. Jenny and aunt were secretly conveyed to the cars, and sent to Springfield by an express train.

A RECOGNIZED TRUTH—Cleanliness is one of among the few enjoyments one can indulge in without being accused by the world of want of feeling. One of the best aids to this enjoyment is the Hyperion Fluid for the hair, invented and sold by Wm. Bogle, 227 Washington street, Boston. It removes dandruff and eruptions from the roots of the hair, and furnishes it with a healthy tone and appearance.

ARRIVAL OF THE

Empire City and the Georgia

AT NEW YORK.

$1,500,000 in Gold!

375 PASSENGERS.

New York, July 8.

The steamer Empire City with California mails to June 1st arrived at 6 o'clock this morning.

She sailed from Chagres on the 26th and Kingston on the 29th.

The Empire City brings over a million and a half dollars in gold dust and 375 passengers, among whom is John L. Stephens, President of the Panama railway. The first locomotive was started on the 4th at Navy Bay. The event was duly celebrated.

The Empire City left the Falcon at Chagres. Isthmus healthy, but most daring robberies are of frequent occurrence.

Files of Kingston papers to 29th, but entirely barren of news.

Business more than usually dull, and prices declining, especially for bread stuffs and provisions. Coffee very scarce and ordinary qualities command 30 to 36 shillings.

Freight lower.

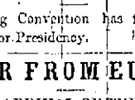
Steamer Georgia, with Havana dates to July 2d, arrived this P. M.

News from Cuba possesses no interest.

Ohio Whig Convention has recommended Gen. Scott for Presidency.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE



CANADA

AT HALIFAX.

MARKETS &c.

Halifax Telegraph Office,
Monday, July 7, 8½ A. M.

The mail steamship Canada, Lang, arrived from Liverpool this morning at 20 minutes past 2 o'clock, taking our good citizens, official gentry and news mongers very much by surprise.

She has 48 passengers, 40 for Boston, and a large freight.

No American steamer had arrived at Liverpool during the week preceeding the sailing of the Canada.

The Washington arrived at Cowes on the morning of the 27th.

The advices per Canada had imparted a dull feeling to the Liverpool Cotton Market. Prices had declined ¼ penny to one farthing in the current qualities of American.

The quotations are fair Orleans 6¾d, middling 5⅝, fair uplands 5¾, middling 5d. Sales of 34500 bales, 1450 on speculation and 5970 for export. Market closed dull. Sales of Friday 5000 bales.

Owing to false information received at Havre by telegraph from Liverpool on the Canada's arrival, cotton advanced 2 and 3 francs on the previous week's prices. On the receipt of letters, the market became tame and closed on the 24th. Sales 47,700 bales. Breadstuffs have lost their buoyancy. Flour declined 6d. Western Canal 21s 6d. Baltimore 20 6d a 21. Canadian sup. do. Indian corn has attracted little attention. Yellow, 29 6d a 30. White, 31 a 32. Corn meal 14 a 15 per bbl. Wheat lower. White, 6 and 2d. Red and mixed, 5 and 2d a 6 and 1d. No Sales of common American.

Rosin reported better; qualities 4s 3d at 4s 9d a 7d per cwt. Turpentine in fair demand, at 7s 7d a 7s 9d. Tar no sale.

Pitch firm. Low middlings 15s 6d; good quality 18s 6d, in bond.

In Tobacco very little business doing, a few Virginia leaf taken.

Provisions dull. Beef sells more freely, with very irregular rates. In Pork scarcely a transaction to report. Hams dull. Lard declined ½ per cwt. Without increased demand. Tallow in moderate request, no change in price. Sugar advanced 6d, good business done.

London Bankers firm. Holders of Tea common. Congou show more firmness, having in some instances withdrawn these from the market; no change in other kinds. Sales Trinidad Molasses offered at 30 a 6d.

ENGLAND.

Nothing of political importance had transpired between the departure of the Baltic and Canada. Some progress had been made in parliamentary business. In the House of Lords, Lord Campbell's registry bill had been read a third time. On the same day the case of Gordon Tarrand, Indian native prince, against whom he alledged a government prosecution had been issued, was brought before the Privy Council by Lord Ellenborough, who called for the papers and moved for an enquiry.

The public mind is much occupied in debating the ultimate use and destiny of the Crystal palace, and the movement in favor of preserving it for some purpose. The transatlantic steam packet commissioners have reported decisively against any change in the packet station and conclusively against Galway.

A violent hail storm and tornado passed over Cheshire and Yorkshire, causing considerable destruction to property and endangering some lives.

The heat was very oppressive in London on the 26th—ninety degrees in the shade, hundred and ten in the sun.

A terrible typhoon occurred at Ceylon on the 1st of May and at Madras on the 5th. Nearly 20 vessels were lost.

The receipts of the Crystal Palace on the 26th, amounted to twenty-seven hundred pounds and upwards. The visitors numbered nearly sixty thousand.

There is no news of importance from the continent.

In France the discussion as to the revision of the constitution is paramount to everything else. Petitions for the revision continue to flow in. But little progress is effected.

ROME.

At Rome Signor Evangilista, Chancellor of the Holy Consulta, was assassinated on the 16th ult.

SPAIN.

From Spain beyond some alarm at the spread of socialist doctrines there is nothing to report.

Disasters.

Liverpool, June 27th.

The Halcyon, Wade, from Liverpool to New York was fallen in with on the 11th inst. 39 N. long. 68 West, dismasted and with loss of rudder, by the William H. Warton, arrived here from Mobile, which took from her about 145 passengers and part of crew. The remainder of the passengers and crew were taken on board the Connecticut from Mobile to Liverpool, which left the wreck shortly after the William H. Warton.

The Halcyon was dismasted in a gale from the south east on the 8th June. She had about 300 passengers.

The American bark J. & E. Woodward, from Havana to Bristol, having been in collision with the Acquir from Havana to Cowes during the night of the 19th, off the Isle of Wight, lost bowsprit, cutwater, &c.

☞ By the arrival of the Baltic at New York on Saturday last, we have the following:

One of the most destructive fires that ever occurred in London happened on the night of the 24th. The fire broke out in the large warehouses in Southwark, near London bridge; loss estimated at £200,000. The severest sufferers were a Mr. Alderman Humphrey, and Messrs. Wiggan & Co., Hop Factors.

France. M. Ledru Rollin was condemned by default by the Assize Court of Paris to two years' imprisonment, and a fine of 2000f., for the publication of the two pamphlets, Le 24 Fevrier and Le 13 July.

GROVER & BAKER'S
Patent Sewing Machine.
(Patented Feb 11th, 1851.)

THE Inventors and Proprietors after a long time spent to perfect and simplify their machine and having now received United States Letters Patent on the same are prepared to offer for sale the exclusive Right of Territory for States Counties and Counties or Machines with the right to use. This machine rely and original invention both in all and having never been offered to the public the right of the invention is therefore unrestricted. Our Machine by the use of two needles a peculiar thread from spools feeds a seam at once which will not open or ravel—in fact a fast stitch. It is adapted to the sewing on all kinds of fabrics also of leather in straight circular or other seams. It is capable of being worked at great speed and requires but little power. By means of the feed carriage which is compact and convenient the stitch may be regulated to any length. The needle strikes perpendicularly upon the body of the Machine, and affords an opportunity of sewing as far in from the edge of the cloth as may be desired. The Machine is worked by treadle hand or power, is easily regulated and is so compact and simple in construction is not liable to get out of order. We are confident that our Machine complete (which will be carefully packed for any part of the world) is one hundred and fifty dollars. Application for right of Territory or the Machines with right to use as well as inquiries respecting them and all orders enclosing money for machines will be promptly attended to. All letters to be post paid and addressed to the Directors and Partners
